OVERVIEW

Programming Workshop Announcement Graphic

Workshop Dates

- December 17th, 2020 at 6pm PST
(this workshop dedicated to Black Portland community)
- December 19th, 2020 at 10am PST
(this workshop dedicated to the Youth community)
- December 21st, 2020 at 12pm PST
(open to the general community)

In conjunction with AVT, the Design Team hosted a series of Programming Workshops with the community to invite participation in visualizing what aspects of home and community are important to them. The Workshops were the second in an extensive public engagement process that also includes virtual Joy! events and on-going Community Dialog surveys. As such, the team detailed to the participants the overall planning process; where we have been previously, we are in that process now, and what is to come in the near future.

Each hour and a half Workshop session was held online using the AVT Zoom platform account. Participants were asked to register for the event through EventBrite. As with previous workshops, the sessions were conducted at three different times on three different days to intentionally capture as broad a participation group as possible. These selections included mid-morning on a weekend, mid-afternoon a week day, and mid-evening on a week night. The first workshop was specifically dedicated to the Black Portland community, the second was focused on the youth population, and the third was open to the general public. To complement these focus groups, the guest hosts and worksession facilitators included a prominent black public activist, a long-time Albina resident and artist, and a 14 year-old visual artist and student.

The Design Team emailed Workshop invitations directly to specific contact lists held by AVT while public announcements of the events were posted to all four social media platforms.
